About Dr. Gaige:

Known to many as a visionary leader, Dr. Frederick Gaige served as Dean and CEO of Penn State Berks from 1984-2001, transforming the campus into a college with four-year degree programs and residence halls. Gaige was a noted scholar in the field of South Asian studies and became an expert on Nepal, where he did research on a Fulbright Fellowship from 1966-1968.He returned to Nepal as a Fulbright Lecturer in 1983 and, in 1991, he served as a consultant to the U.S. Agency for International Development on the first democratic elections in Nepal. Gaige earned his doctoral degree in South Asian studies from the University of Pennsylvania in 1970

Along with his achievements listed, there is an aspect of Dr. Gaige that is not so easily found in a "list": He was a kind and generous man, personable and sincere. He knew the names of all employees on campus, and was often found walking through the halls greeting people and giving them an apple. He is greatly missed by those who knew him.
